Heritage Hills Music Fest is rescheduled

The Heritage Hills Christian Music Fest at Heritage Farm Park in Clermont, IA has been rescheduled for the weekend of September 27th. Because of ongoing efforts throughout all Eastern Iowa communities in the flood recovery, especially the many youth groups involved with the clean up, Heritage Farm Park and the promotions company has determined that it would be prudent to move the festival to new dates, later in the season. Every community in Eastern Iowa has been directly or indirectly impacted by the major natural disaster of flooding this Summer. In September all college students will be back, all High Schools will be reopened and there will be a focused effort to have a renewed festival. The artists schedule may change slightly. Please visit the web site at www.heritagehillschristianmusicfest.com for updates.

Registration will be held at Postville Community Schools August 12 and 13 from 1-7 p.m. in the All-Purpose room of Cora B. Darling School for all students in grades K-12.

An Allamakee County Deputy sits outside the apartment building on Lawler Street where two men were stabbed early last Thursday morning.

Two men stabbed; suspect at large

At approximately 2:50 a.m. Thursday morning, the Allamakee County Communications Center received a 911 call in Postville regarding a stabbing at a residence in downtown Postville. Following the call, Allamakee County law enforcement and emergency personnel were dispatched to 101 E. Tilden Street.

Upon arrival, law enforcement found Irving Villarreal, 19, of Postville suffering from what appeared to be a non-life threatening stab wound. Villarreal was treated and released at an area hospital.

However, residents who had congregated near the scene of the stabbing, told law enforcement officers that there was another victim located in the back of the residence at 242 North Lawler. The second victim, Ricardo Salinas, 37, was discovered at the residence with what appeared to be a single stab wound. Salinas was transported to an area hospital where he was later air lifted to Gundersen Lutheran Hospital in LaCrosse, Wisc. Salinas was listed in fair condition late last week.

Postville Police are looking for a suspect in the case, Norberto Luna, 47. Luna was thought to have been driving a green early 1990's model Ford Aerostar van when he left the scene. The Illinois license plate number is 9465817.

The three men, Chief Halse said, are acquaintances, who work in Postville, but are not residents.

Special agents with the Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation and deputies with the Allamakee County Sheriff's office assisted the Postville Police Department with the investigation which is still ongoing.

Immigrants meet with U. S. congressmen Saturday

Democratic United States Representatives Luis Guterrez, Illinois; Albio Sires, New Jersey and Joe Baca, California, all members of the Congressional Hispanic Caucus, were in Postville Saturday to visit with immigrants who have been deeply impacted by the May 12 raid at Agriprocessors.

The children told about fearing for their lives and being cared for at the church while their parents were being taken to area jails throughout the state. Many of the women in attendance at the informal meeting were wearing ankle bracelets, as they, too, were arrested but were later released to care for the children.

The trio of congressman were in agreement that those arrested and detained should have been protected by the American Democracy.

They vowed to do what they could to help those affected by the raid. All in attendance agreed those arrested should have been granted immigration attorneys.

Postville Childcare Center participates in quality rating system (QRS)

The Postville Childcare Center has chosen to participate in the Quality Rating System, a voluntary program that offers providers a guided way to improve the quality of childcare being provided. The QRS was developed to raise the quality of care in Iowa, increase the number of children in high-quality child care settings and to educate parents about quality in child care.

According to director Katie Hageman, The Center in Postville has chosen to participate in the Quality Rating System because they are committed to providing children in the community and surrounding areas with quality child care. By participating in the QRS, Hageman said, they will continue to work toward improving the quality of care they are able to provide. A QRS rating, she added, is in effect for two years. At the end of the two-year period, the program will need to reapply and receive a new rating.

With each level the Center achieves, they are increasing professional development, as well as attention to environment, health and safety, and family and community partnerships. The Postville Center is currently at a level two and intend to work toward applying for a level three within the next 18 months. Hageman said, "Each step we take on the QRS is a testimonial to the wonderful, caring staff that we have at the Center. They deserve a 'pat on the back' for the great things they do daily."

Hageman added that residents and especially families with young children are invited to come visit the center at any time to see what they have to offer.

She said, "We want people to know what we are doing at the Center. Stop in and check us out. We currently have some openings so feel free to stop by and check us out. The children here have a wide variety of activities to participate in while they learn and play in an educational environment."

Marchers walk for immigration reform during Sunday's rally

A call for immigration reform, in the form of a prayer service and peace walk, brought an estimated 1,500 to 1,700 people to Postville Sunday afternoon. Prior to the walk a standing room only crowd gathered inside St. Bridget's Catholic church where an ecumenical service of peace was held. Sister Mary McCauley of the parish said the peace walk was being held as a call for immigration small towns like Postville.

She also said, "Our immigrant families are living in fear. They come to the church for help and we need to send a message to the rest of the country."

During the prayer service people worshiped and prayed together in English, Spanish and Hebrew. Among the participants were Rabbi Robert Marx, Jewish Council on Hispanic Ministry, St. Bridget Parish.

Rabbi Marx, speaking to the worshipers inside the church and those listening on the lawn and in the street said, "We are people of all faiths who have noble intentions; but, we must do more than simply gather here and say that we are the righteous. We must become righteous and demand of our country that the dreams are fulfilled."

Daycare children spend a day on Meyer farm

Children of all ages, from toddlers to middle schoolers, were treated to a "day on the farm" last Friday thanks to Eric and Tina Meyer and their children Connor and Emily. Tina said, "We saw how excited the children were when I took a small farm animal to the Center earlier this year and decided it would be fun to show the kids country living. During the day the kids heard stories about farm safety, as pictured above, saw many different farm animals, rode in a tractorcade, met Dairy and Pork royalty, made pudding, and enjoyed a picnic on the lawn. Helping with the event were members of the Postville FFA, Advisor Nick Zuercher, family, friends and neighbors of the Meyers. Everyone in attendance agreed it was great fun and the hands-on learning for the kids was super. The Meyers are to be commended for hosting the group of over 50 kids and showing them true country living at its best."

NICC Dairy Judging team travels to Scotland for competition there

The Dairy Judging Team from Northeast Iowa Community College, of which Postville's Darren Kraus is a member, had an extreme honor this summer when they were invited to compete at the Royal Highland Show, an international livestock and agriculture show in Scotland.

Other team members are Megan Kregel of Guttenberg and Hannah Gesing of Waukon. Adam Knegetdorf of Spring Valley, Wisc. was the fourth member of the team but he was unable to make the trip. Chaperones were Gary and Darlene Kregel of Guttenberg.

The invitation came as a result of placing third last October at the World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wisc.

The NICC group, along with the team from South Winneshiek High School, who were also competing, from Minneapolis, Minn. to Newark, New Jersey. In New Jersey they met up with other livestock teams and they all flew together on the seven hour flight to Glasgow, Scotland.

The team from NICC judged cattle shown by the Young Farmers, a group similar to FFA (Future Farmers of America) here in the United States. There were teams from all over the country, which included FFA, 4-H and college students. The judging took place in outside rings at the grounds in Glasgow. All judges were required to wear white lab coats. Kraus, Kregel and Gesing judged four classes, gave two sets of reasons and placed fifth overall.

After three educational and touring days in Scotland, the group went to Coventry, England for one night and London, England for two nights. They traveled from London to Paris on the Eurostar "chunnel" train, which goes under the English Channel between England and France. The train, Darren said, travels at a steady 180 miles per hour. The group spent two nights in Paris after which they journeyed to Luxembourg where the students stayed with a host family for two nights. Kraus said, "It was interesting staying at the farms and while in Luxembourg, we got to meet the Grand-Duc of Luxembourg (head of state). Each team presented the Grand-Duc with a gift that represented their state."

The final two nights were

Peace Rally

Those calling for immigration reform came to Postville from as far away as New York, New Jersey and Texas and many more groups were from other states throughout the Midwest including Minnesota, Illinois and Wisconsin. Several hundred of the walkers were Jewish people who wanted to demonstrate their disapproval of the happenings at Agriprocessors.

The march began as those attending the prayer service chanted "Give us courage. Give us hope. Give us love." Other chants heard throughout the two-mile walk, both in English and Spanish, included "People united cannot be defeated" and "Yes, we can."

At times the air seemed almost festive and several observers noted the atmosphere was reminiscent of the "Taste of Postville" celebrations of years gone by.

The majority of people walking, ranging in ages from babies in strollers to octogenarians using canes and walkers, carried placards calling for immigration reform within the federal government. Sayings on the placards included "Love thy neighbor", "Build sense, not fences."

Walkers proceeded from the parish down Williams Street to West Street where they stopped at the entrance of Agriprocessors. Rabbi Harold Kravitz of Minneapolis stilled the crowd as he spoke of the need for the ethical treatment of workers and the need for immigration reform.

He said, "The Jews that are here today are here because we care about the terrible state of the immigration system here in America and the need to treat people fairly."

While Rabbi Kravitz spoke to the hundreds of walkers, Getzel Rubashkin, son of former plant CEO Sholom Rubashkin, visited with several reporters at the entrance to the plant. Although he said he was not speaking for the company, Rubashkin said the plant cares about its workers and does not treat its workers inhumanly. He also said the illegal immigrants deceived management with forged documents.

Following the stop at Agriprocessors, the marchers walked through downtown Postville before returning to Williams Street in front of St. Bridget's. A group of between 100-200 protesters shouted from the sidewalk as the walkers passed by. They waved flags and shouted "Go Home!" Their signs, which targeted the Postville residents arrested during the raid, said things such as "Save the American Worker." One protester's sign said, "Impeach Bush." One woman, who said she was from Chicago, was dressed like the Statue of Liberty, said she thought all immigrants should gain access to America legally.

Postville police, Monona Police, Allamakee and Clayton County Sheriff's departments, along with the Iowa State Troopers, kept the marchers and protesters separated throughout the march.

At the Conclusion of the walk/rally several participants addressed the crowd until a thunder storm and heavy rain sent the crowd scurrying for shelter.

Postville Mayor Robert Penrod, one of the last to speak, told those present the community is committed to immigration reform and it is his hope to bring a peaceful solution to the problem. He said the children are a vital part of our school system and it is his hope that the families will be reunited.

When it came time to buy Jill's engagement ring, I knew I would look to Elliott's first, but thought I would end up getting it elsewhere. After our first stop I was sold. I was so impressed with Elliott's service and knowledge of diamonds I had a hard time going anywhere else. I felt like I had been informed and not misled like others that have gone elsewhere to get their diamonds. Their honesty and effort in making sure you walk out the door feeling confident in the value of your purchase is the reason I would recommend Elliott Jewelers above anywhere else.
